crew in the regatta on August 14. It is understood, though Coach Hecox is unwilling to discuss this phase of the agreement, that the locals have agreed to pay all expenses.

This acceptance, however involved, will probably mean that the local crew will agree to accept an invitation to join in the regatta to be held in Washington, under the auspices of the Washington Post, on September 18. Coach Hecox is especially anxious to have his crew in the race, and other members of the local club are willing to bear a proportionate share of the expense. The regatta in Washington will be the biggest event of its kind in Southern waters this fail.

The Washington Post conceived the idea of having the crews of the several clubs in Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia get together distinctively from all other meets, and agreed to finance the regatta. Six clubs have already entered, and with the Alexandria and Richmond crews, the meet will be open to eight crews. The plan is to have cance, skull and motor-boat races, followed by a carnival at night.
